

Scenes from the 2009 IEEE International Symposium on EMC

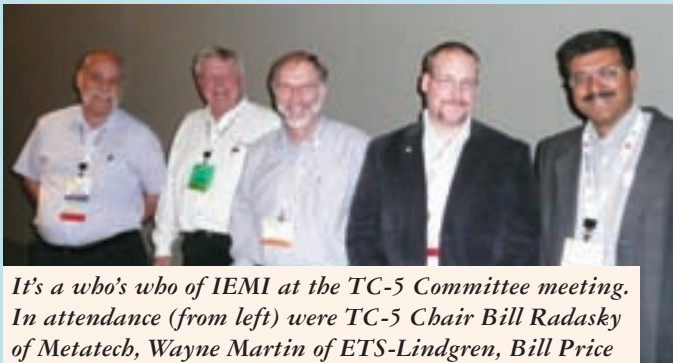

Dennis Camell of NIST, Kimball Williams of Denso, Lee Hill of SILENT, Pat André of André Consulting and Yulung Tang (from left) of ETS-Lindgren (Taiwan) visit during a social event held at EMC 2009.

Vignesh Rajamani (left) and Chuck Bunting of Oklahoma State University joined Lesly Bunting, Chuck's lovely wife, for an evening out in Austin.

ALL PHOTOS BY JANET O'NEIL UNLESS OTHERWISE NOTED

It's a who's who of IEMI at the TC-5 Committee meeting. In attendance (from left) were TC-5 Chair Bill Radasky of Metatech, Wayne Martin of ETS-Lindgren, Bill Price of Boeing, Daniel Månsson of High Voltage Valley and Rajeev Thottappillil of the Royal Institute of Technology.

Leo Smale and Cindy Catlin of Lionbeart North-west and Tom Mullineaux (from left) of Milmega were big winners at the Symposium Gala Casino.

The Austin Convention Center announces EMC 2009.

PHOTO BY KEN WYATT

Dr. and Mrs. Mahmoud El Sabbagh enjoyed a visit to Austin for EMC 2009. Dr. Sabbagh is with the University of Arkansas.

Bruce McAllister of Tech-Etch was all smiles during the exhibition at EMC 2009.

David Schramm, Kevin Conley and Hope Mascott (from left) of Intertek were thrilled to be in Austin for EMC 2009.

Kevin Queen (left) and Douglas Shepherd of AR RF/Microwave Instrumentation enjoyed the booth traffic in the exhibit ball.

ETS-Lindgren's Dale (left) and Cody Stone organized the Symposium Gala Casino. Texas Hold 'Em was one of the popular games enjoyed by all, of course!

Antonio Orlandi (left) of LAquila University caught up with Jim Knighten of Teradata Corp. at the Hilton, host hotel for EMC 2009.

That's one lively casino table with (from left) a happy dealer (nice shirt!), Mary Ellen and Jim Blaha (he's with Ingenium Testing), Dan Hoolihan of Hoolihan EMC Consulting, Bob Davis of Lockheed Martin, John Kraemer of Rockwell Collins and EMC Society Founder Milton Kant.

Espresso Engineering provided a hot shot of engineering expertise during the symposium with live interviews. Graham Kilsbaw (left) of Interference Technology and Mike Violette of Washington Labs prepare to go "live" on the exhibit floor.

PHOTO BY KEN WYATT

Bob Scully of NASA visited with Joe Stanfield, Travis Samuels and Art Coben of A.H. Systems, as well as Kanaiya Mahendra (from left) of Aerospace Corp. while at EMC 2009.

Reverberation chamber gurus compared notes during EMC 2009, including (from left) Noel Sargent of Analex, Kurt Shalkhauser of NASA Glenn Research Center, and Mike Hatfield of the Navy Dablgren.

Henry Ott of Henry Ott Consultants caught up with Joe and David Fischer (from left) of Fischer Custom Communications during a break in the exhibit ball.

Martin Rowe of Test & Measurement World, Marco Klinger of Peugeot Citron, and Harry Gaul (from left) of General Dynamics took a quick break in the exhibit ball at EMC 2009.

Experts at the "Above 1 GHz" tutorial included (from left) Tim O'Shea of Northwest EMC, Mike Windler of UL, Vince Rodriguez of ETS-Lindgren, Bob Jobnk of the Institute for Telecommunication Sciences, Don Heirman of Don HEIRMAN Consultants, and Werner Schaefer of Cisco Systems.

Live music was featured at the Symposium Gala since Austin is well known as the "Live Music Capital of the World."

PHOTO BY JERRY RAMIE

Texas-based Cynthia Hightower of Jacob's Engineering and Charles Brooks of NASA took advantage of the technical education offered at the 2009 IEEE EMC Symposium in nearby Austin.

Sharon Smith, Lorie Nichols, and Erin C. Feeney (from left) launched the new IN Compliance magazine at EMC 2009 with the debut of the August issue.

(From left) Takeo Yoshino of the Univ. of Electro-Communications, Nobuo Kuwabara of the Kyushu Institute of Technology, Naoto Oka and Takeshi Ucbida of Mitsubishi Electric Co. and Hiroshi Inoue of Akita University enjoyed the live music in the exhibit hall.

Contrary to popular belief, the Friday sessions at EMC 2009 are full of activity.

Todd Hubing (left) of Clemson University chaired the Global EMC University at EMC 2009. Pat André of André Consulting was his able administrative assistant.

Achim Gerstner (left) and Hans-Peter Bauer ably staffed the Robde & Schwarz booth.

An all-star band performed at EMC 2009, including (from left) Jeff Silberberg of the FDA, Mark Steffka of the University of Michigan-Dearborn and GM, Clayton Paul of Mercer University, Carol Paul, and John Maas of IBM.

PHOTO BY KEN WYATT